

Newborn Information Form

Congratulations and thank you for choosing Kristy Janeway Photography to photograph the most fleeting stage of your child's life ... the first few weeks. Below, I have enclosed the information pertaining to a newborn session at our studio. It is my hope that you will find this information helpful as you prepare for our session together. If you have any more questions, please feel free to ask.

- Please feed your baby within the hour before I/you arrive so that he or she has a full tummy. Please undress him/her and loosen nappy, then wrap your baby in a blanket, and feed him/her. Use blankets for warmth – this helps with no clothing lines made on bubs skin.
- Otherwise, your baby may get upset at being undressed when they were so cozy. I do like to photograph a newborn mostly in little to no clothes, but feel free to bring an outfit that you may want him or her in. Please note that many clothing changes may make your little one upset, so it is best to do birthday suit shots and possibly one outfit.
- I often use the parents as backdrops for baby, so please wear a black top and black pants (if possible). Also, an extra set of clothes for the parents is a good idea, just in case. Mum and Dad are welcome to join for pictures with baby at no extra charge. The studio can get quite warm so if you run hot - please bring clothes to dress accordingly
- Please know that there is no rush with a newborn session. I like to give special attention to each client, especially newborn sessions. Please know that I do not mind waiting for you to nurse or change baby, or taking a break to soothe your baby.
- When doing the poses where the baby is undressed, it is normal (and okay!) for him or her to "relieve" him or herself on my backdrop ... or anywhere else. I can assure you this happens all the time and I am not upset or offended. Please bring with you baby wipes, extra diapers and a towel. After each newborn session I am sure to launder all of my backdrops and other items the baby comes in contact with. This is included in the session fee for a newborn session.
- Playing soft music can help bring a peaceful environment; therefore, I have a collection at the studio of music to play during your session.
- Please only bring those who are to be photographed to the studio. Also, cameras and other recording devices are not permitted.
- Please bring something for the older children to do while they are not being photographed. Crayons, mini board games, and books are good choices.

Thank you, and congratulations on your new addition!
